

Name: _____ Date: _____

Words to know:

latent (present but not yet visible), ultimate (final or fundamental)

One of the basic puzzles that confronted ancient philosophers was the puzzle about _____.

Aristotle discovered the distinction between _____ and _____, or actuality and potentiality.

The things around us in nature are not only what they actually _____ but also what they _____.

Aristotle realized that all things in nature are a _____ of act and potency.

Actually...	Potentially...
Acorn
Child
Ocean Water

Change:

Change consists of the _____ of the potentiality latent in things.

Why does the potentiality of things become actual?

- Potentiality does not realize itself on its _____.
- There must be some ultimate source of _____.
- The ultimate source of change must be completely _____ and not have any potentiality in it—but is responsible for the realization of potentiality in everything else.
- The ultimate source of change: _____ or _____

Comprehension question:

Describe a time when something potential in you became actualized.
